SOCIETY

SOOCIETY has been in a constant whirl for the past two weeks and there is more to come. The summer Lenten week preceding the reappearance of Dame Kamehameha had but a slight tendency to check the bubbling spirits of the social set. Seclusion indeed has Honolulu enjoyed so much gaiety in its social circles and rarely have the functions been so pleasant. The members of the Imperial Pilgrimage of Shriners made their impression on the gaiety of the town and added a little to the number of affairs which have filled society's engagement tablets with continuous dates. Night after night there have been banquets and balls, dinners and suppers, luau and fairs and the numberless little what-nots which fill in so nicely. Truly, Honolulu has had a social awakening and the remembrances of it will be carried away into many parts of the Mainland by those who have been charmed by the hospitality of the social and the smart set of the Hawaiian capital.

Clippings of Japanese home and social life were to be seen yesterday afternoon and evening at the Japanese bazaar given by the Ladies Aid Society of the Japanese Methodist Episcopal Church at Halekela Lawn, opposite the Hawaiian Hotel. The beautiful lawns shaded by trees with great spreading branches, were dotted with picturesque little booths in which Japanese simplicity of decoration attracted the visitor. Japanese ladies and maidens attired in the richest and prettiest of kimonos, were present and ever attentive to the slightest wishes of those who patronized the bazaar. Most of the ladies were of the pretty type rarely seen outside the homes of the wealthy, and their grace of movement and never-failing courtesy quite won the hearts of all. Whether in the booths or upon the grounds a touch of the old Japan was apparent in all that was seen or done. In the afternoon gay flags of the Japanese empire—the white square with its red ball in the center, hung from tree to tree and from shrub to shrub, entirely enclosing the fair grounds. When once the visitor entered the circle of flags, bunting and swaying lanterns, the visitors felt as if transported to some picturesque corner of the Mikado's realm. Crowds of people, foreigners and Japanese alike, visited the bazaar during the afternoon and purchased liberally. Groups of Chinese women were not infrequently met, and they fraternized with their Oriental neighbors on the friendliest of terms.

In the evening the electric lights, enclosed in Japanese paper lanterns, were lighted, and the scene became even more picturesque. Although the ladies of the foreign Methodist church had prepared tables whereon foreign edibles were displayed, yet the visitors devoted the most of their time gazing at the oddities of Japanese were offered for sale. One of the prettiest pictures of this garden scene was the miniature tea garden—a tiny little booth made of paper and bamboo. The platform covered with matting was elevated from the lawn. The interior was decorated with screens. The interior was made more captivating by the presence of Mrs. Masuda, who went through the ceremony of brewing tea in the old style. In the center of the booth was a jardiniere in which was placed an antique brazier wherein water was heated. Prostrating herself before the urn, the little lady proceeded to the brazier. With graceful fingers each tiny jar was placed in a certain position about the jardiniere; the bronze cup with long handle; the tea bowl; the jar containing a rare brew; the brush with wooden bristles for cleaning the bowl; and in the fold of the tea maker's obi was a red silk cloth. The bowl was cleaned with water and a dainty flecking with the brush; the silk cloth was used to polish it brightly. A pinch of the tea leaves was placed with much ceremony in the bowl; the lady bowing before the tea urn, the heated water was transferred from the brazier to the bowl; a deft movement of the water and the tea made it into a greyish liquid, and with drooping eyelids the little maid placed the bowl before the guest. Such is the High Tea of Japan, a land where much time of the day is spent in ceremonies. The booth, it is needless to say, was crowded.

The booth wherein the music of the nobility was played on the thirteen-stringed koto, by Mrs. Sakamoto, brought many visitors. The player was charming, and the strains, odd to the foreign ear, were eagerly heard.

The artificial flower booth was cared for by Mrs. Ozaki. Mrs. Imaishi presided over a table covered with lacquer ware. The circular booth whereon were sold Japanese foods and delicacies was in charge of Mrs. Saito, wife of the Japanese Consul and Mrs. Moe. Most of the dainties were donated. There were the foreign tables, so-called, because they were not a la Japonaise. These were looked after by ladies of the Methodist church. Donations of various kinds were given by Mrs. Dole, Mrs. Damon and other prominent women. Home-made kimonos, wooden shoes and oddities were for sale. The bazaar will be open again this afternoon and evening from 2 until 10 p. m., and the grounds will doubtless be crowded.

Mrs. R. F. Bickerton is spending a few days at the Hawaiian Hotel. She expects to leave on the Sonoma, due here on Tuesday for the Colonies, where she intends to place her son in college.

Mr. William Gartner is entertaining his old chum and schoolmate, Mr. Adna Chaffee, who is on the transport Meade on his way to China to make a short visit with his father, General Chaffee, in charge of the United States forces in the Chinese empire. The young man will enter West Point next fall. Mr. Gartner also had the pleasure a short time since of greeting another schoolmate, Lieutenant Knox, the youngest officer in the army, and the son of General Knox, of San Juan P. fame.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hall and family are spending a few weeks at their Peninsula residence.

A beautiful bunch of Chinese asters, white, lavender and pink, interspersed with Sweet Williams, was brought to the city yesterday morning from the Peninsula by Henry Waterhouse and placed in a conspicuous position of his office to the envy of the young brokers and financiers. Some of the asters measured a full three inches across, and were certainly beauties.

The Honolulu Art League literary circle will give an "at home" this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Thursday gave a progressive dinner at which the guests at the end of each three courses changed from one table to the next higher. There were three tables, and three changes were made, giving an opportunity for all to meet at some time during the evening. The affair was both novel and entertaining, and was greatly enjoyed. The table decorations were in green and yellow and presented a pretty effect. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Neumann, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Suhr, Judge and Mrs. Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Isenberg Sr., Captain Pond, U. S. N., and Mrs. Pond, and Mrs. Frank.

The masquerade dance given by the Heanani Boat Club last evening surpassed even the fondest expectation of those who had it in charge in the realization not only of the spirit of merriment, but in the matter of costumes.

The boathouse, which is one of the most delightful spots in town for an evening of this kind, was brilliantly lighted, and the bridge pathway spanning the water between Ala Moana and the club's headquarters was a glittering avenue of electric illuminations, to guide the mysteriously cosmopolitan throng that shortly before 9 o'clock began to arrive in whirling autos and rattling hacks.

Glistening under the light of a myriad of electric lights, the dancing floor of the clubhouse was in its usual excellent condition, and the walls were hung with the club colors in gay banners and fluttering pennants.

An ideal Honolulu evening with charming aquatic surroundings made the scene one of beauty and gaiety, the music of the quintet club harmonizing sweetly with the rippling water in which the lights were reflected.

The costumes were many and odd, more than three hundred maskers mingling in the clubhouse with interesting cosmopolitan effect. The clowns were much in evidence, as were also Irish comedians, Maud Mullers and milkmaids.

The eighteen numbers of the program were merrily recited off by the enthusiastic fun-makers, and seemed none too long, though it was 2 o'clock before the last extra closed the program.

At 11 o'clock the revelations caused by the unmasking furnished a merry half hour of good natured jesting, and the dainty collation served on the club-house tables occupied the attention of the masqueraders for an interval, before the dancing was resumed.

Among those present, in their respective impersonations, were the following:

Ben Bruns, giddy old maid; B. Kidd, Hoosier; Fred Holzheizer, Japanese; Ralph Yardley, an artist in evening dress; Wade Warren Thayer, evening dress; H. A. Mrs. Walter Hoffmann gave a delightful euchre card party yesterday afternoon from 2 to 5:30 o'clock. The rooms were decorated prettily in green and yellow. Mrs. M. C. Widdfield captured the prize, which was a pretty sketch in water colors. The invited company was Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. A. T. Brock, Miss Kaufman, Mrs. Dole, Mrs. W. C. Wilcox, Mrs. Theodore Lange, Mrs. Charles T. Wilcox, Miss Mist, Miss Irmgard Schaefer, Mrs. Phillip Andrews, Mrs. Gardner Wilder, Mrs. Kiteat, Mrs. Elston, Mrs. Gave, Mrs. Kaul, Mrs. Harold Mott-Smith, Mrs. J. Walter Jones, Mrs. E. A. Isenberg, Miss Isenberg, Mrs. E. Jones, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. C. B. Wood, Mrs. Slaker, Mrs. M. C. Widdfield, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Otis, Mrs. A. E. Murphy, Mrs. Lange, Mrs. Annis Montague, Mrs. M. A. Auer, Lady Herson, Mrs. F. M. Hatch, Mrs. P. J. Lowrey, Mrs. Valman. Appropriate fairy cards consisting of autumn leaves in water colors, and other pretty souvenirs were used. Bon voyage cards were given to the guests who are soon to depart for other lands.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Isenberg Sr. leave for Germany on April 10th.

Mrs. Theodore Lange gave a delightful euchre card party Wednesday afternoon to a large number of friends.

Mrs. W. L. Stanley and her mother, Lady Herron, will leave for England via Vancouver, next month, by the Aorangi. They will be absent for about a year and a half.

Miss Marie von Holt gave an enjoyable tea on Thursday.

Dr. and Mrs. George Harbert entertained at dinner for several of their friends at the Moana Hotel on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Suhr leave the Islands forever on the steamer leaving Tuesday for the coast of the West. They will reside permanently in Germany.

Mrs. Deering, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Estee, is expected in Honolulu shortly on a visit with her parents. Mrs. Deering's husband is a former Honolulu, but since his marriage has taken up his residence in San Francisco.

A charity concert, similar to that given last year at the Palace Hotel by Mrs. Joseph D. Grant, Mrs. William G. Irwin, Mrs. J. B. Casserly and others will take place next month, probably in the art gallery of the Hopkins' Institute. Mrs. Casserly and other society amateurs will appear, says the Examiner.

Miss Ardella Mills is being entertained in Honolulu, says the Examiner. Mrs. Frederick Beardslee, nee Taylor, is settled in her new home and has as a guest her mother, Mrs. Thomas G. Taylor. Mrs. Taylor will not return from the Islands before the middle of April. Miss Mills returned to San Francisco on the Mariposa, after a pleasant visit here.

Mrs. Coney gave a poi supper Thursday evening to a few friends, at her residence on Alakea street.

Mr. and Mrs. T. May and family leave Tuesday for the Aorangi next month for England, where they will reside permanently.

The Woman's Guild of St. Clement's Chapel, will give an "at home" for Mr. and Mrs. T. Rain Walker and Mr. and Mrs. T. May, at the rectory on Wilder avenue, on Easter Monday evening from 8 to 11 p. m. The Walkers and the Mays leave for England soon to stay.

Work has been commenced on the fine new residence of Mr. George Davies.

Mrs. Charles B. Cooper's tea, given Tuesday at the home of her father, Dr. McGrew, in honor of Miss Chamberlain and Miss Graig, of Southern California, visitors to Honolulu, was one of the most successful of the many social functions of the past few weeks of events. When a hostess combines with rare social tact, the personal charm of manner of which Mrs. Cooper is possessed, she cannot fail to insure for her guests the pleasure which was the portion of those who attended Tuesday's tea. Mrs. Cooper was assisted in receiving the guests who thronged the rooms between the hours of 4 and 7 o'clock, by Mrs. Edward Damon, Mrs. J. F. McDonald, and Miss Stansbury. Though yellows and golden browns were the predominant flower shadings of the decorations—sunny marguerites gave place here and there to the warmer tints of nasturtiums. A gorgeous dash of color was made by a bunch of crimson lilies against a background of ferns and palms fringing the lanai. During the afternoon an impromptu program was rendered, consisting of vocal solos by Mrs. Harold Mott-Smith, Miss Ardella Mills of San Francisco, Mr. Prouty and a trio of male voices by Messrs. Dillingham, Dillingham and Prouty. Among those present were Mrs. A. J. Hawes Jr., Mrs. Arthur M. Brown, Mrs. Gardner Wilder, Mrs. Charles T. Wilcox, Mrs. Gerritt Wilder, Mrs. J. Walker, Misses May Damon, K. Widdfield, Mrs. Gertrude Scott, Juliet King, Sadie Carter, Mrs. Gunn, Mrs. E. Tenney, Mrs. Francis Gay, Mrs. Charles Elston, Mrs. Philip Andrews, Messrs. Walter Dillingham, I. Dillingham, Lewis, Byron Baird, Hall, Maddox, Whitley, Ivers, Murray and many others.

Little Laola Booth was the hostess at a poi luncheon given last Saturday at her parents' residence, Pauoa valley, at which a large number of her young friends and older ones, as well, were present, the occasion being the celebration of her fourth birthday. The table was decorated with green ferns strewn over the cloth, the centerpiece being a jardiniere of pink roses; at each end was a Hawaiian platter of koa wood filled with tropical fruits, and at each little one's plate was a Hawaiian basket to be taken home as a souvenir of the event. The handles of the baskets were prettily trimmed with pink and blue baby ribbons tied with bows of the same. The souvenirs were also lined with pink and blue and filled with candies and bon-bons. Little koa calabashes were also placed at each plate. The affair was thoroughly Hawaiian and was greatly enjoyed by the guests, who were Charles T. Wilcox, Wilcox, George, Frances, John and Harry Brown, Harriet and Richmond Davidson, Alice Hastings, Vernon Tenney, Makia, Lani Alie, Caton Marmion, Katherine and Emmeline Magoon, Queenie Sharrat, Emma Baker, Muriel and Beatrice Campbell.

Honolulu's smart set danced in a cotillion last Monday evening of a sort rarely seen here before. Barbours Lathrop, the host, threw himself into it with the order of one who knows how to lead the German, and the result was one of the most successful affairs of the kind ever given here. The cotillion was danced in Progress Hall, which was beautifully and tastefully decorated with huge masses of greenery, palms, ferns and the like, while fringes of malle upon white and red chaille over the archways, surmounted by nodding, ti-plant leaves, made a most attractive scene, the like of which has rarely been attempted in a Honolulu ball room. To Mrs. E. D. Tenney and Mr. Gerrit P. Wilder is due the decorative scheme and the manner in which it was carried out. The cotillion began very late—at the very fashionable hour of 10 o'clock—and lasted until well into the early light of a new day, when it had steadily over the summit of Diamond Head when the last auto sped away from the dance. The society folk present were of the local Four Hundred, the ladies appearing in beautiful toilettes, which have already been described, those who were lucky enough to be hidden in the cotillion were: Mrs. M. Damon, Mrs. Charles B. Cooper, Mrs. M. C. Widdfield, Mrs. Gerrit P. Wilder, Mrs. Arthur M. Brown, Mrs. Edward D. Tenney, Mrs. F. M. Swanwick, Mrs. Mary Gunn, Helen Noonan, Mrs. John S. Walker, Mrs. E. M. Patch, Mrs. Alexander G. Hawes, Jr., Mrs. S. E. Damon, Mrs. C. M. V. Forsgren, Mrs. May Damon, Miss Katherine Widdfield, Miss Juliet King, Miss Mary Widdfield, Miss Gertrude Scott, Miss Marion Scott, Miss Jessie Kaufman, Miss Ella Stansbury, Miss Kate Cornwall, Dr. Charles B. Cooper, Mr. Dillingham, Mr. Gerrit P. Wilder, Mr. F. P. Fugham, Mr. Richard Whitley, Dr. H. V. Murray, Mr. C. N. Prouty, Mr. George Potter, Mr. B. Griggs Holt, Mr. Tenney Dillingham, Lieutenant Hancock, U. S. A.; Mr. Arthur Brown, Mr. Robert Shingle, Mr. A. Lewis, Mr. F. M. Hatch, Mr. A. G. Hawes, Jr., E. C. Macfarlane, Mr. George Foster, Mr. Richard Ivers, Mr. Porter Boyd.

Mrs. Howell, nee Widdfield, wife of Lieutenant Howell, Artillery Corps, Marine, has been quite ill of malarial fever.
